Baseball Booming in London Town

Baseball has at last obtained a firm foothold in England, and is being played to such an extent in and around London by Canadians whom the war has brought over that a eague has been formed among teams drawn from the army pay office and other Colonial units, the staffs of the various Canadian military hospitals and munition workers. The Canadians having intimated that they would welcome the entry of an American team into the league, one such is being formed by J. G. Lee, of Central Buildings, Westmin-

Long Branch. June 18. Hans Lobert was in charge of a detachment of the Giants who played and won their second game of the season here to-day against Mike Donlin's new Long Branch team by a score of 3 to 0.

Schupp and Schauer again divided the box work for the Giants and both pitched gilt-edged ball.

Andy Coakley, who worked for Denlin's team, held the visitors scoreless for five innings, but weakened a bit in the fifth inning, when the Giants reached him for three consecutive hits, scoring two runs.
